

VLEX acquired by Aptean

May 2025

GHZ Partners advises Aptean on its acquisition of VLEX

GHZ Partners is pleased to announce that it acted as the exclusive M&A advisor to Aptean, a global front-runner of AI-driven ERP solutions on its acquisition of Vlexgroup AG (“VLEX”), a Swiss provider of ERP solutions.

For more than 40 years VLEX, based in Sursee, has been offering software solutions for the medium-sized manufacturing sector.

“VLEX has a proven track record of delivering mission-critical variant-manufacturing solutions across the DACH market” said TVN Reddy, CEO of Aptean. “VLEX’s product VlexPlus delivers state of the art software solutions specifically designed to manage the complex needs of the variant manufacturing industry and is backed by a team of seasoned industry experts. VLEX will be an important driver in our strategy to scale our DACH manufacturing capabilities. Welcoming the VLEX team and customers into the Aptean family marks a significant step forward in our shared commitment to innovation and success.”

“We are delighted to join a global organization like Aptean, where together we can continue to develop and deliver innovative solutions to our customers. The combination of our businesses offers an exciting opportunity for VLEX’s future growth given our shared commitment to innovation and customer satisfaction. Being part of Aptean presents our customers and our team with exciting opportunities for growth and development and we can’t wait to get started,” said Jens Pfeil-Schneider, Chairman Managing Director of VLEX.

Financial details of the transaction were not disclosed.

